Season's Greetings and News

2018 was a busy year for the CINE project partners, and 2019 looks like being just as exciting.

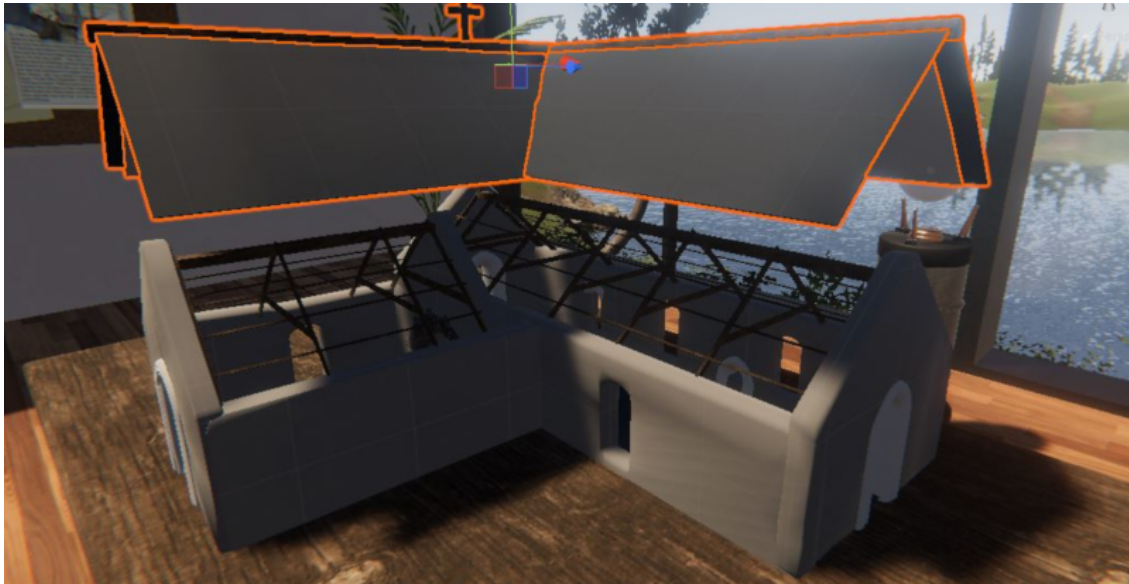

We've made a video to show you what we have done during the first year of the CINE project. #cineproject

We're looking forward to launching, testing and developing more digital heritage experiences at our case study sites, from the lost medieval town of Vågar in Lofoten, Norway, in the north, to Killybegs in Donegal, Ireland in the south.

"The most exciting project for us in Aurora Borealis Multimedia, is to start the 3D modelling process with actual terrain and the 3D object/texturing.

“Timespan looks forward to continuing its digital exploration of archaeological sites and landscapes in Kildonan and historic buildings, on the coast at Helmsdale, with the local community, groups and schools, to reconstruct digital models of the past that challenge perceptions and inform about climate change and land use and ownership.”

Our exploration of new digital technologies for transformative heritage experiences will continue.

“Locatify is looking forward to continuing our work with the partners in CINE, with focus on how AR can present cultural heritage.”

We’re excited about sharing our work and our belief in the contemporary relevance of heritage with wider audiences in the coming year.

“For Ulster University, 2019 offers an exciting opportunity to engage with schools and spark the interest of younger generations in their heritage using immersive technology.”

“Timespan’s digital innovations will connect people with the past, the present and the future.”

Finally, 2019 will see us meet as a partnership twice - in Helmsdale in the spring and Ireland in the autumn. We're planning some public events at each meeting, so keep an eye on future newsletters and our social media accounts for more information nearer the time.

“We look forward to welcoming all the partners to Ireland in October 2019 for discussions and workshops. In particular, this will be an opportunity for the partners to meet our community collaborators and visit some of the sites we have been exploring.”

In the meantime, we would like to wish you a Merry Christmas and a happy New Year from all of the CINE team.

CINE is a collaborative digital heritage project between 9 partners and 10 associated partners from Norway, Iceland, Ireland and Scotland.
